

Sagittarius
©2009 Brian Hazard (ASCAP)

I scan the nighttime sky
Paralyzed by vertigo
As my life spins out of control
I spot the archer with his bow
Whose constellation guards
The celestial zodiac
Human and horse
Cause and effect
Like an arrow to my back

Sagittarius
How did I get into this hopeless mess?
Sagittarius
Was it fate, or my own choice?

It's all there in the stars
Venus and Mars
Bruises and scars

Do I reach for the stars
Or do they reach out for me
Drawing me in Luring me on
With the pull of gravity
I realize the stakes
And it cuts me like a knife
Without a will
Without a voice
What's the meaning of my life?

I confess to the crime
Empty bottles of wine
Purple eyeliner streaks
Lipstick stains on the sheets
And the smell of perfume
Lingers still in the room
On my tongue still the taste of regret

You'll be betrayed again
By the destiny of man
To be played out
Again and again
In a cruel eternal plan.

Monochrome
©2009 Brian Hazard (ASCAP)

Soon she'll fade away
An empty promise
Cast in shades of grey
An image from a dream
Or 50's TV screen
Going colorblind
I tell myself to
Quit while I'm behind
It's more than I can bear
To see her standing there
And vanish in thin air

In monochrome
In black and white
She disappears right in front of me
Like color dies in the dark
In camouflage
Against the night
My eyestrain pales in comparison
To the straining of my heart

If only I could shine
A flashlight on her
Pulling her inside
To catch her like a ghost
Entrapped forever close
Right here in my hand
A genie in a bottle to command
Within her radiant shrine
Defying space and time
Her light forever mine.

Indestructible

©2009 Brian Hazard (ASCAP)

Why do we have to fight like this?
A brotherhood of eager fists
You've always had a taste for blood
If you're not man enough to shrug it off
Well I guess that's your loss

You know me like nobody else
It's like a marriage made in hell
We're always at each other's throats
But when the dust clears and the choking ends
We'll still be best friends

Cause we're indestructible
Our friendship is bulletproof
Invulnerable to the recklessness of youth
Yes we're incorruptible
Our friendship is guaranteed
We're full-time companions
And part-time enemies

I don't know who will get killed first
We'll be together at the worst
A pointless war in foreign lands
Or murder at the other's hands no doubt
I can't rule that out.

Last Song

©2009 Brian Hazard (ASCAP)

I just thought that you should know
This will be my last song
I've got nothing more to say
I tore my heart out just for you
Wrote down every detail
Put the whole thing on display

You don't know me at all
You don't know me at all
You don't know me after all

I just thought you'd want to know
This might be my last song
I just want to hear you say
That it means something to you
Not a lot just something
That it's not just throwaway

You don't know me at all
You don't know me at all
You don't know me after tears and laughter

Nobody wants to be analyzed
But we all need to be understood
And so I sing and still I would
Even if no one was listening
Every song is a journal in rhyme
A tribute to the audience
That sings along in my mind

I just wanted you to know
This won't be my last song
I've got so much more to say
Though the words escape me now
I won't give up trying
To connect with you someday.

